Get more politics! Get it to Rose Hill too! FULR did a thing with lawyers and it was also really good so you could try something like that.
Stop hosting career fairs thursdays 12:20-3 when everyone has class Virtual component to events are a great component and adding things like certificates at the end are good incentives to bring student involvement.

Fully online events could be a little later in the day and if they are earlier they should try to be on wednesdays
Work with RAs!
Smaller firms could also be much help not just the big banks like GS, JP... I think allowing boutique banks as well can give people more opportunities
More virtual events.
For in person events- a coffee event where you can connect with other individuals.

I found that in person events were more helpful.
Commuter friendly times
More in person/hybrid and less virtual tech industry employers, fintech and entrepreneurial for grad students having less virtual events and more in person events would be easier

Better on campus advertisements especially for new comers that are unaware to new resources, there may be a need for a board to promote these opportunities Making events hybrid would make it easier for commuters and those who are on other campuses.
hybrid events would be great!
Employers that are not business people
The resume workshop I attended was on zoom and no one knew what was happening. An email prior to the event with an agenda would have been helpful.
Greater investment in Rose Hill. Gabelli seems to receive many more resources and help during the job search process.
Holly, Jackie, and Emily are fantastic!
it would be great to have more in-person events, especially career fairs.
more one on one career guidance for FCRH students that educates them on opportunities in their field and more graduate school application guidance
I would encourage more in person events, as it is difficult for some people to pay attention and talk to the speakers during virtual events
I think there should be more one-on-one meeting time.
Better promotion for smaller events. Some i wanted to attend but didnt find out until one day before and had already booked something for that time
